The future of educational travel has never been more challenging. We are here to help you meet that challenge. More than ever, educational travelers and their families will need to be reassured and provided with services that provide peace of mind.

We work closely with study abroad programs, governments and health care providers to deploy integrated travel risk and crisis management solutions, supported by our proprietary GRIDSM journey management platform and our exclusive relationship with the Johns Hopkins Medicine Department of Emergency Medicine Division of Special Operations.

EXPERT ADVISORS TO HELP YOU RESTART EDUCATIONAL TRAVEL

Our in-house medical, security and intelligence experts have decades of experience in travel risk mitigation and crisis management planning. Our teams of doctors, nurses, paramedics, senior military intelligence and special forces veterans can help you implement new procedures to maintain the highest level of traveler health, safety and compliance with all government requirements.
