FIELD RESCUE

Global Rescue pioneered the concept of worldwide field rescue more than a decade ago. Our teams of first responders and military special operations veterans bring unparalleled experience and capability to rescue our members, regardless of the environment.

MEDICAL ADVISORY & EVACUATION

Backed by an exclusive relationship with the Johns Hopkins Department of Emergency Medicine Division of Special Operations, our critical care paramedics, nurses and physicians are available to advise our members anytime, anywhere. We also provide evacuation to the nearest appropriate medical facility, as well as transport via private and commercial aircraft to our members' preferred home hospitals. All transport costs are covered by your membership.

SECURITY EXTRACTION MEMBERSHIP OPTION

When members face the threat of bodily harm or a government evacuation order is declared, we bring them to safety and transport them home. Our teams of military special operations veterans are immediately available to advise, deploy and extract in the event of an emergency, natural disaster, terrorist attack or civil unrest. All transport costs are covered by your membership.

"I was panic stricken but lucky that morning. I had the benefits of the American Alpine Club Global Rescue Service at my fingertips. My partners leapt into action, calling for my rescue and preparing a heli landing pad on the glacier. That afternoon I was swept away by the rescue helicopter and in a hospital, breathing again."

— Steve Swenson, Former President, American Alpine Club

GLOBAL rescue

PROTECTING CLIMBERS AND TREKKERS ANYWHERE

Important things to know about your Global Rescue membership:

1. Global Rescue is not an insurance company. We are a membership organization that provides advisory, rescue and evacuation services. Global Rescue must be contacted at the time of an incident and we are unable to reimburse members for any rescue not organized but Global Rescue. (If Global Rescue organizes and/or performs the rescue and the criteria below are met, there is no cost to the member up to $500,000.)
2. For Global Rescue to cover the costs of a medical evacuation, the member must be ill or injured and require in-patient hospitalization. This determination is made by Global Rescue's medical team at the time of an incident. Global Rescue will never deny services to a member in need, but in cases where this threshold is not met the member will be responsible for the cost of the evacuation. Global Rescue may ask the member for a credit card to cover the cost of services requested for transports of convenience.
3. Communication is critical in any backcountry or wilderness rescue situation. Global Rescue strongly recommends that members carry or have access to a satellite phone. The Global Rescue emergency number (1.617.459.4200) can be pre-programmed into the phone and it is helpful to let your partners and/or guides know that you have our service. It is also important to carry spare batteries for any extended trip.

Frequently asked questions by climbers and trekkers:

Q. Does Global Rescue place any restrictions on elevation or the use of technical climbing equipment?

A. No, there are no restrictions on elevation or the use of technical climbing equipment.

Q. Does my Global Rescue membership cover me wherever I am in the world?

A. Yes, as long as you are more than 100 miles from home and below 80° North or above 60° South.

Q. Will I be evacuated if I have altitude sickness?

A. Yes, for cases that require in-patient hospitalization. However, the possession of a Global Rescue membership should not override common sense or personal responsibility. Any member suffering symptoms of Acute Mountain Sickness should not ascend higher and should contact Global Rescue as soon as possible. Global Rescue's medical teams are trained to assess members with symptoms of Acute Mountain Sickness and are supported by Global Rescue's staff physicians, including a leading authority on altitude-related issues.
